Jesse Caruso

He had 15 weeks to heaven.

scared him.

A journey 2 years prior
he dreaded
facing all the same.

Knowing what was to come he sensed how much it

Now he stood in confrontation with 4 things to remember, before he leapt onto the path of his journey to December.

Always

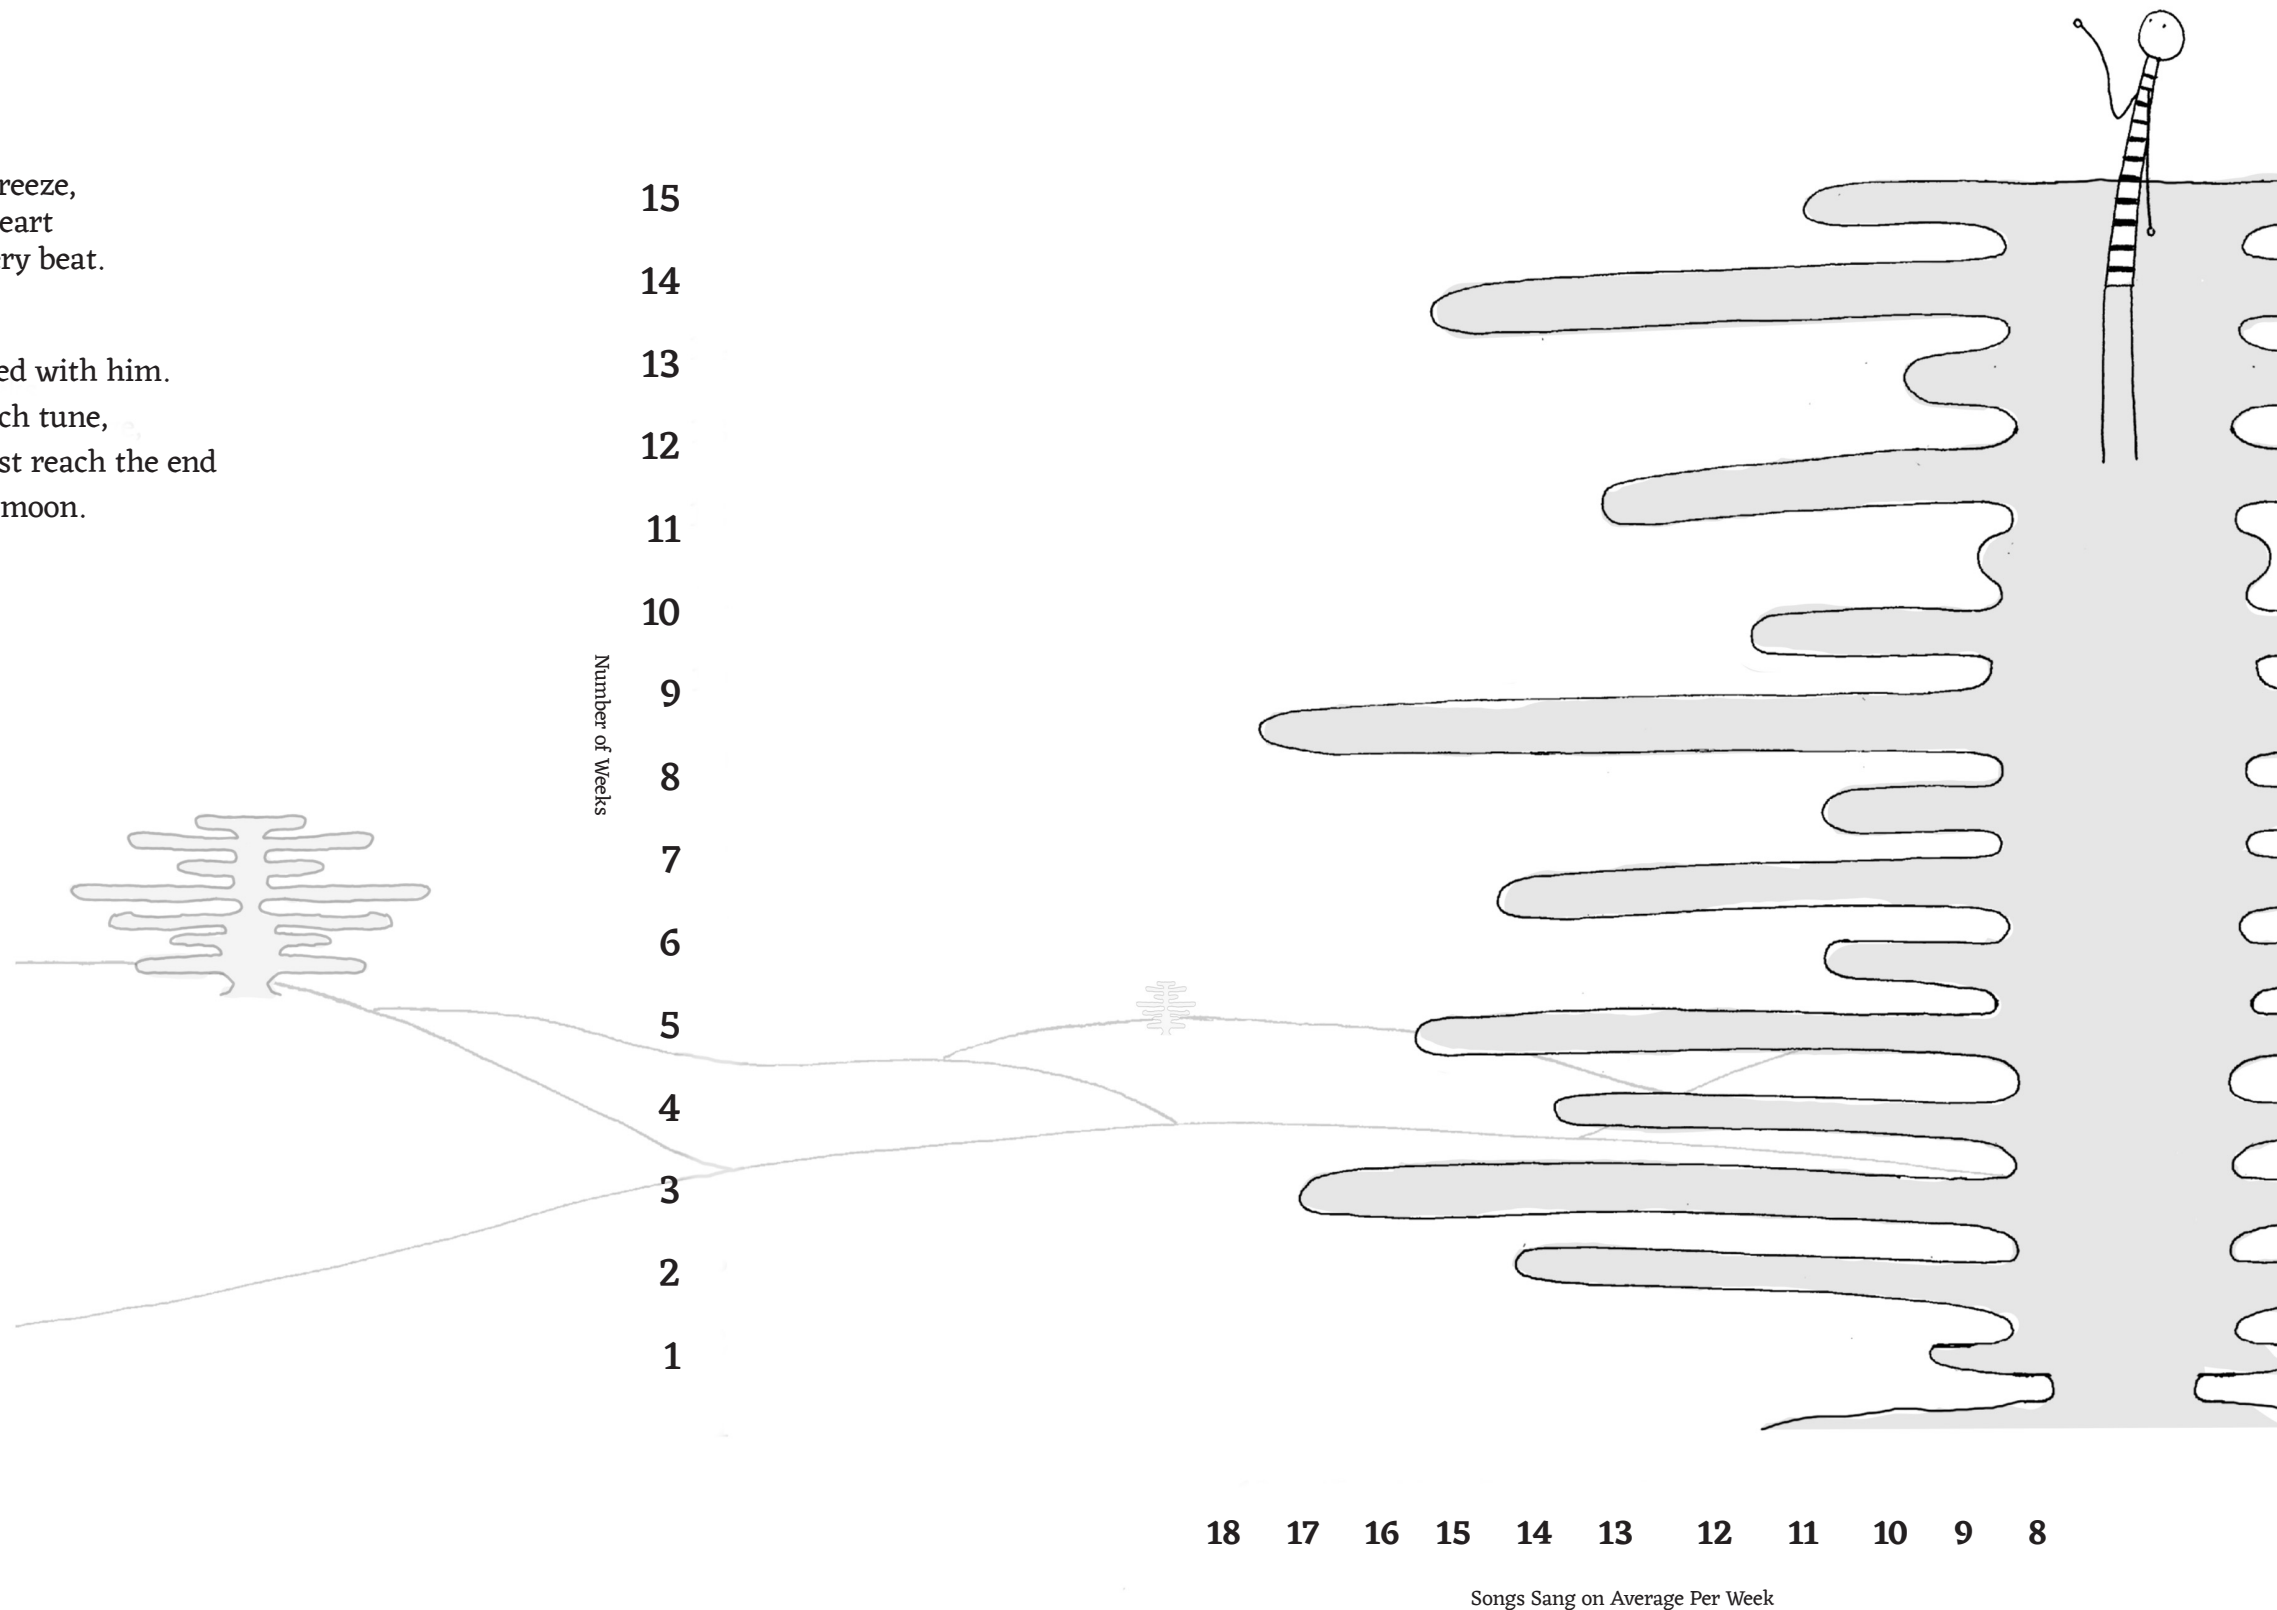

Eat,
Sleep,
Sing,
Repeat

and don't forget to b r e a t h e .

These things will keep you sane
and pull you back up on your feet.

The first few weeks,
they felt like such a breeze,
as he sung his little heart
out and danced to every beat.

And the ground danced with him.
Getting taller with each tune,
he thought he'd almost reach the end of this journey to the moon.

There was always one small thing
that kept coming to mind.

to

up

But as much as he did sing and ^{rose}

He needed to rest.

But with every night's sleep

And that was without question.

He'd sink deeper and deeper.

And if that wasn't enough to set him aback.
He was also a...

HYPPOCHONDRIAC

And a good one at that.

His biggest archenemies were food poisoning and disease,
and he believed he would have both, at least once every week.

But believe it or not,
he did end up making it.
After a few thousand steps...

962,723 (In total)

He could finally come to rest.

Now with those 15 weeks officially behind him,

he did indeed
make it to heaven.

15 weeks
to heaven.

To all the tears and anxiety attacks along the way...
